Conference Attracts Large Delegation

About forty interested delegates from many Oregon schools attended a discussion of the problems of modular scheduling last weekend at Bend.

Many ideas were presented at the conference, mostly by BSH student body leaders. According to Michele Baker, who was in charge of the convention, the program was quite successful.

The schedule included meetings Friday afternoon and Saturday morning and a no-host banquet at Elmer's Pancake House.

Some of the schools represented were Willamette of Eugene, Andrew Jackson of Portland, Junction City, and Wood-

The student body meeting, held in lieu of rally squad tryouts, resulted from a petition started last week by Harold McLean which condemned the Executive Council's choice of candidates for rally as "unrepresentative."

Don Hickman, senior class president - elect, claimed that such a vote was unconstitutional, denying the duly-elected representatives their power.

A vote of the students present was taken. Those wishing to the two opposing parties, those overrule the Executive Council's decision held nearly a 150 vote margin over those defending the Executive Council. The vote was 381-238.

After a brief caucus with Don and Student Council advisor Miss Mac, Student Body President Bob Douglass appeared, declared that the action of the student body was indeed unconstitutional, and dismissed the meeting.

Rally Controversy Clarified

Members of the Executive Council who felt that a clarification of last week's events was needed submitted a letter of explanation to be printed in the Bear Facts.

In keeping with the decision made by the administration barring the use of names, we will briefly relate the contents of the letter.

(1) The initial rally tryouts in the gym were held strictly according to the constitution, which states that anyone wishing to try out need only give a yell before the Executive Council. Therefore, the two girls who tried out at the last minute had every right to do so.

Before any tryouts took place, Sally Komar stated that comments an E.C. member had on any of the candidates should be made to the group. However, only four girls of all those trying out were discussed by the group as no comments were offered on any of the other candidates.

Some of the girls trying out felt that letting the two others, mentioned above, try out was unfair. One voiced her objections in a loud and excited manner to one of the rally girls within hearing range of the Executive Council which was nearly ready to vote. This had a definite effect on the Council mem-

The Council voted and the finalists were named.

Following the announcement, there was a display of emotion by a nominee who was out in the hall and dissatisfaction was voiced by many of the others in sympathy.

(2) The following morning, after calls had been made to President Bob Douglass and Mr. Brown concerning Wednesday's procedures, a special Executive Council meeting was called.

At that time, the situation was discussed openly--both pro and con--and it was suggested that all the nominees try out before the assembly due to the problems raised. The Council members present included a number who had not been present previously. After hearing both arguments, they voted to abide by the decision already made as they felt it was justified.

(3) A petition was circulated and a student body meeting was held Friday the 19th. However, since mentioning personalities was not allowed, all the facts were not available to the student

The writers felt perhaps the students would have understood the situation better if names were used and details revealed, which they sought to do in their letter. It was not possible for us to publish it.

The question which faced the members of the Executive Council and the one which faces the voting body now is just exactly what are we voting on?

The Executive Council felt that it was not only skill, but personality, conduct, sportsmanship, and the general ability to be the best possible representative of the school as well. They felt working well with others and dedication, which cannot be determined only by watching a girl perform, was essential.

We of the Bear Facts staff hope that you will consider this question carefully before casting your ballots for the 1967-68 rally members on Monday.

Athletic Awards Presented At First Girls' Sports Banquet

A speech by Mrs. Ginger Johns, former president of the Division of Girls and Women's Sports of Oregon, and the presentation of awards to all the girls who have participated in sports this year, highlighted the first Girls Sports Banquet Monday night.

Pins for field hockey, volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, and track and field were presented to the girls who took part in the growing number of girls' sports offered by the Athletic Department. Members of the tennis team, a varsity sport, were awarded certificates.

Miss Margaret Holman and Miss Fran Howard, who have coached all the girls' sports activities this year, presented the awards. Miss Holman coached field hockey, gymnastics, and tennis, while Miss Howard supervised volleyball, basketball, and track teams this year.

Approximately 125 girls earned sports awards, many lettering in two or more sports. About two hundred people attended the affair.

In recognition of her fine coaching work during her two vears in Bend. Miss Howard was given an engraved silver plate by all her teams.

Karen Lundgren was the Mistress of Ceremonies for the banquet. Musical entertainment was provided by Kobey Kemple and Lee Ann Smith.
